MR. MEREDITH'S OPINION. The City Attorney's opinion in the matter referred to above is as follows

To the Honorable City Council:

1 submit the following opinion in reply to I submit the following opinion in reply to your inquiry whether section 3 of chapter 4 of the City Ordinanees is constitutional. That section reads: "No person shall be elected or appointed to any office or employment in the service of the city who shall not have resided therein for twelve months next preceding such election or appointment, or who shall be delinquent in the payment to the city of any bill for pointment, or who shall be delinquent in the rayment to the city of any bill for taxes.

I am informed that your inquiry arose when about to full the vacancies in the Foard of Health and I presume that you wish my opinion to apply to those offices.

The Constitution of Virginia, in Article III. section I, provides as follows: "Every male citizen of the United States twenty-one years old who shall have been a resident of this State twelve months, and of the county, city, or town in which he shall offer to vote three months next preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote upon all questions submitted to the people at such election." Ac., &c.

In section 2 of that article it is provided that "all persons entitled to vote shall be eligible to any office within the gift of the people, except as restricted in this Constitution."

It will be seen from the two sections above quoted that as to all offices "within the gift of the people" the only qualification required is twelve months' residence in the county, city, or town.

The Supreme Court of Virginia in Black vs. Trower (79 Virginia, page 123.) decided that as that was the only qualification required by the Constitution none other should be required by the Constitution none other should be required by the Legislature as to say office "within the gift of the people."

The city ordinance above quoted requires additional qualifications—viz., louger residence and the payment of city taxes. It is evident that if municipal offices are offices "within the gift of the people" as meant by the Constitution, then the city ordinance is unconstitutional, and would be covered by the ease just cited. It becomes necessary, then, to ascertain whether it was intended to include municipal offices in the words "within the gift of the people."

Authorities are abundant showing that many constitutional provisions, though broad and general in their terms, do not apply to municipal government; and many of those authorities are most pertinent to the question at issue.

The Supreme Court of this State in the case of Gift seen vs. The Frederick Justices (13 Grat., 557.) beld that the provision in the Constitution of 1831 declaring that "taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the Commonwealth," dc., related to taxation by the General Assembly for purposes of State revenue and did not apply to taxes and levies by countles and corporations for local purposes.

The Constitution of Missourn gave power to the Court of Appeals of St. Louis to issue certain legal writs, and allowed appeals from the decision of that court to the Supreme Court of the State in cases lavolving the "little to any office under the State."

The latter search their in Pittion ex, Streber (52 Mo., 370.) that an appeal taken as to the little to the office of mayor did not like because the office of mayor did not like the office.

In the case of Siewart vs. Voster (2 Birm. 110.) the question presented was whether an alien who had resided in Pittsburgh one year next preceding an election for borough chieve, and had within that time paid a borough tax, was entitled to vote at such election.

cheers, and had within that time paid a borough tax, was entitled to vote at such election.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held that he was entitled to vote, as he had all the qualifications required by the act incorporating Pittsburgh. Such was the decision of the court, although the Constitution of Pennsylvania required new years in the State as a qualification of every voter "in elections by the citizens."

See also the Scranton Borough Election, reported in Brightley's Leading Cases on Elections page 455.

In State ca. Blanchard (c. La. Ann. 114. and the Supreme Court of Louisiana held as follows: "The clause of the 95th article of the Constitution, which restricts eligibility to parish offices to persons who have the right to vote in such parish, contemplates State officers. In interpreting the 126th article, which declares that no person shall hold or exercise at the same time more than one civil office of emolument, except that of justice of the peace, we held that it contemplated State offices."

shall any person hold more than one literative office at the same time."

The Constitution of Delaware contained a provision that "no ordained clergyman or ordained preacher of the Gespel of any denomination shall be capable of holding any civil office in this State."

A clergyman was elected Treasurer of the city of Wilmington. His right to the office was disputed in the case of The State w. Wilmington (3 Harrington, 294). The Shrence Court held "that the terms used in the Constitution have reference to State officers and not to corporation officers."

The charter of Milwaukee contained a provision as follows: "If any member of the City Council shall, while a member, be elected to any other office of said city, such election shall be vold." The question was raised (in state w. Von Baumbach, 12 Wis., 310.) whether the law was not unconstitutional, as adding a qualification not resulted by the Wisconsin Constitution. The Legislature has power to prescribe the omatifications of city, town, or village officers.

Does the power to make ordinances for the "appointment" of a Board of Health carry with it the right to require twelve months residence in the city? Is such a power implied in the power of "appointment." If is, to what extent is the Council limited in requiring other and more increasingly qualifications. The power to require each member of the Board of Health to be a physician is included in the power of appointment, for it is incidental to the express power.

In Kenrsey vs. Andrews (2 Stock, Chan, Rpt's, 76.) the Supreme Court of New Jersey, held that "the power of filling vacancies being incidental to a corporation, it has the right by its hy-laws to prescribe the manner in which such vacancy shall be filled, provided it is not inconsistent with the design of the charter and does not infringe its provisions; but the City Council has night to declare who shall be the electors." See also Hex es. Head, 4 Burr., 2521.

The question arcse in State es. Jersey City (1 Dutcher Sec.) as to the power of the City Council to disquality a former member from being re-elected who had been expelled for bribery. The charter gave the Council full power to expel for disorderly conduct. The member was duly expelled. The Court held that the charter gave no power to disquality, and that the power to disquality could not be implied from the power to expel."

The above decisions show the tendency of the courts to narrow the implied powers when it is attempted to abridge the rights of persons to vote or hold office.

Among the English cases divers authorities may be found negativing the right of Council to limit the numbers of persons who may hold office.

In Hex es. Spencer (8 Burrows, page 1827)

Council to limit the numbers of persons who may hold office.

In Rex cs. Spencer (3 Burrows, page 1827, the question arose as to the power of a Council to limit the number of persons out of whom a certain class of officials should be elected. In that case Lord Mansfell said: "It is now settled that a by-law cannot narrow the number of persons out of whom the election is to be made." Justice Wilmot said a by-law cannot narrow the following the said: "And the qualification here amore is a suspension of their right till they have served these offices respectively for whole year, so that it is a suspension for two years at the least. As the charter of the city of Richmond gives the Council no express power to make tweive months' residence a qualification for office, and as such a power is not incident to the power of appointment. The decision of Judge Bond in the mandamus case of Burgess cs. Winsten, Sheriff, has already been announced in this paper, but the importance of the principle settled gives in-terest to the full opinion, which has been filed-as follows :

Dr. George H. Bright is about fifty years old, and is an extensive and popular practitioner. He lives in Jackson Ward.

Dr. Stratton is secretary of the Reform City Central Committee. He was an important witness in the Cluverius trial, being the last person known to have seen Cluverius and his victim on their way to the reservoir. He is a son of the late Mr. M. L. Stratton, of this city, and served during the war in Company B, of the First Virginia side of Virginia, by its proper officers. All of these gentlemen are Democrats.

Mr. Ryall is superintendent of the contractive soap-factory, and is about the first years old.

The opening hymn, "Home of the Seul," was sung by Captain Frank Cunningham with more than his usual pathos and sweetness. The other hymns were "How Firma Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord," and "Jesus, Lever of My Soul," and were sung by the choir and Captain Cunningham, while Professor Reinhardt presided at the organ.

The services were conducted by Rev. Drs. Landrum, Cooper, and Hatcher.
